The Honorable William Colby
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C. 20503

Dear Bill:

I recently was associated with your Senior Seminar and had a great time with your people. You certainly have their confidence and their loyalty.

On another occasion I met one of your people whom you might like to keep your eyes on as a person who may have potential for growth and leadership--
[redacted] (I don't know his title or job.) I don't know anything about his substantive capability, but after only a brief acquaintanceship I was impressed with his humanness, his openness (about his own needs--not his business), and the way he broke through the usual stilted social norms to be warm and human. These traits are hard to find anywhere these days in our uptight society!

All the best.

Sincerely,

William J. Crockett
